The conference was evidently prearranged, as Governor Stone went directly to the Sherman House after registering at the Auditorium, Nearan hour was consumed in the conference, and at its conclusion not one of those present would say a word or breathe a suggestion concerning its import. Governor Stone, however, and insisted that Bland could not be kept out of the nomination. Sixteen to 1, he said, meant Bland; Bland meant 16 to 1, both meant free silver, and that was the issue of the day.

The news of the conference spread quickly around town, and it was at once taken for granted that the Bland leaders had made some kind of aillance with Governor Altgeld, at whose word the forty-eight votes of Illinois will be cast as he wills and as a unit on all questions. Governor Altgeld was asked point blank whether such an alliance had been effected, but he merely not arrived.

THE PRESIDENT REMAINS OVERNIGHT AT

THE HOME OF MR. BENEDICT. Washington, June 30.-President Cleveland left Washington at an early hour this morning, to spend the summer with his family at Gray Gables. vife and children are at Marion, across the bay from the President's summer home. Washington was hardly astir when the two left the White ouse, and only the members of the sleepy night force of the mansion were there to say goodby. Mr. Thurber has been the President's guest since Thurber went away, and the two had an early breakfast. They were driven quietly in one of the White House carriages down Pennsylvaniathe Pennsylvania Railroad station, and walked down the platform without attracting any attention, even from the few porters and station employes who were trying to keep awake. The President and Mr. Thurber entered the special car day set for the opening of the Democratic Na. of Vice-President Thomson, which had been placed at their disposal. The car was attached to the train scheduled to leave Washington for Jersey City at 7 o'clock, and at that hour it pulled out from the station.

The messages of congratulation which have been pouring in upon Major McKinley since his nomination have naturally decreased in number. but last evening and to-day he has been showered with messages expressing approval of and satisfaction with his speech to the Notification Committee vesterday. Messages have come from every important city in the country, and those from the Pacific Slope have been cordial and reassuring. One of the most prominent Democrats in Chicago sent this word: "You have placed yourself solidly on a solid platform." The tone of these messages seems to indicate that Major McKinley's speech yesterday was eminently satsfactory to the friends of sound money throughout the country. This afternoon the Rev. J. H. Bomberger, presi-Ohio, called on Major McKinley and informed expected at any moment. All the men have come would visit him at 4 o'clock on Wedn sday afternoon. The State Convention of Christian Endeavorers is in session here and the attendance to shake the houses. It is supposed that it afis very large.

The Pittsburg Bar Association called on Mafor McKinley at 6:30 this evening. Judge J. W. F. White spoke in behalf of its members, and introduced them to the Mejor. Judge White's speech was short and felicitous. He said. "We do not want to make any speech; we do not expect any speech from you. But we simply want to see you because we have heard some little about you in the newspapers daughter), and we wanted to see the young soldier that left the college to join the Army of the Republic as a private. We want to see the boy that served during the war, and, by his faithfulness as a private soldier, got up to an honorable position in the Army. Then, we wanted to see what Burns says is 'the noblest work of God—an honeat man' (Loud cheering). We want to see a pure representative of the human family—a good citizen—which is the highest honor that can be conferred on any American citizen." J. W. F. White spoke in behalf of its members.

THE BALTIMORE CITY COUNCIL'S APPOINTMENT OF A COLLECTOR UPHELD BY THE COURT.

The Councilmen then instituted a test case by naming Captain Creager for the important and well-paid office of City Collector. Mayor Hooper refused to recognize the appointment on the ground that his three-fourths of the members present and voting were sufficient to override the veto, and that the law did not mean three-fourths of all the members elected, as contended by the Mayor. The Judge elected, as contended by the Mayor. The Judge added that he had nothing to do with the motives which actuated the Cuy Councilmen in adopting such revolutionary measures, but that the vote of 15 to 4 in the first and 7 to 2 in the second branch was a three-fourths vote in the meaning of the law. Mayor Hooper, when advised of the decision, said in the stability of the case to the Court of Appeals and jet that tribunal finally decide it. They heard rappings on the pillar, and when they rapped in return they were answered. The sound was faint, but was clear enough not to be confounded with the noise of creaking timbers. INSPECTOR MIDONALD'S STATEMENT,

Mine Inspector McDonald said: "We are makng better progress to-day. From the slope the listance is the feet. We have gone down the slope 150 fee. This would make a total distance traversed of 750 leet. We a s now near the edge of the fall, and by to-morrow, unless other complications arise, we will be clearing of the loose rock sear the place whe the men were working. And you can say that if it requires months to do it, the bodies will be removed. The bodies will be gotten out if we have to blast solid masses of rock to do it. The men at work now are practically safe. In fact, there is not any apparent sign of the cav agreed upon since yesterday, to go down the slope and on until we find the men, supposed to be somewhere near the basin in the sixth vein." Among the visitors at the mine to-day was E. H. Lawall, superintendent of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company. He said that the work of rescue was proceeding to-day more favorably than at any time since the fall.

DRILLING INTO THE WORKINGS

Spring mine yesterday to pierce the pillar of 100 feet of solld coal between the Clear Spring prove so successful as was hoped. When the drill was in about thirty-five feet it struck rock and therefore had to be abandoned. At 4 o'clock this morning a new hole was started. Elevations were taken from the maps of both of the collieries, and it was hoped that the figuring would be so close as to bring this hole out into the workings of the Twin Colliery. A diamond drill is being used, and it is estimated that the job will require thirty-six hours if all goes well. If, when the hole is drilled through this barrier from the Clear Spring Mine, no water is found on the other side, the hole will be enlarged so that it will admit a man's body, and then explorations may be made from that end. drill was in about thirty-five feet it struck rook SLIGHT CHANCES OF SUCCESS.

In case the cave-in does not extend to that portion of the Twin Mine and the men can traverse the slope, rescuers will start in from that point. They will have to go, at the least calculation, about 2,500 feet to where the men are supposed to be. Then they will strike the fail under the men are and will begin digging. In case, however, that this area beyond the Clear Spring is also affected and "squeezing," the rescuers would not dare to venture in beyond the barrier, and if they should pursue the search they would have to begin timbering and propping as the men are doing on the other side. This propping would have to begin at the point where the roof begins to threaten and cave, and the length of time occupied in reaching the place where the nen are would depend on the condition of the clope. If all the roof is "squeezing" the work would be well-nigh useless, as 2,500 feet would have to be timbered, and this would be a much greater distance than that from the foot of the Twin Shaft, where the men are now working, which is ab ut 1,800 feet altogether, about 900 feet of which has already been timbered and traversed. the men are and will begin digging.
